'Homes may have to be abandoned': how climate crisis has reshaped Britain's flood risk

Guardian (UK News) · Sat, 31 Jan 2026 06:00:51 GMT

As rivers swell and homes are cut off, scientists say UK winter rainfall is already 20 years ahead of predictions When flooding hit the low-lying Somerset Levels in 2014, it took two months for the waters to rise. This week it took two days, said Rebecca Horsington, chair of the Flooding on the Levels Action Group and
